1 in 5 of us live in a news desert... ...many more are at risk

Half of us find out what's going on in our communities on social media

But at the same time, 50% of survey respondents had left social media because of how bad it is.

Spring 2024

I just realized how toxic Facebook really is and that I'm way happier without it

So, I quit Facebook a couple years ago, just deleted the app and began using it only to keep in touch with my friends over text. I found it to be very toxic and whenever I used it I felt drained emotionally from all the drama and the bullshit of the people there. It was truly a good decision with no downsides whatsoever, but up until now didn't really realise it.

This mayor sucks

I hate the mayor. His family are all jerks and they're stealing from the city.

Water Bond Issues

I strongly disagree with the mayor's take on the water bond. As a community, we need to take a hard look at the proposed changes.

“At first it was amazing to be able to find people like you anywhere in the world.

Then we got so wrapped up in the internet that we lost touch with our neighbors.

Now, it's time for technology that connects us where our feet are.”
